DIRECTOR HENRY WARD PEARSON

illinois conservatory of music

The Illinois Conservatory of Music is one of the outstanding music schools in the middle-west. Henry Ward Pearson, the director, has gathered around him an excellent faculty of twenty-one members. Under his astute leadership the department is very active. An artist course, a series of faculty recitals and numerous recitals at which students appear form a very important part of the college calendar. The department is enjoying a steady growth, as attested by the increase in number of major students each year.

The Music Department of Illinois College and the Music Department of Illinois Woman's College were consolidated in 1928, to form the present Illinois Conservatory of Music.

MISS REMLEY

senior class history

The Class of '30 came to the Woman's College the same year as did President McClelland; and, in a sense, may be said to have shared his dreams and plans for the college. The Seniors alone can remember "way back when" MacMurray Hall was only a verbal plan, the realization of which was the goal of all. They were the first to give a freshman dance; they will be the last Seniors to inhabit the Senior Houses. In athletics, the big year of the Class of '30 was its sophomore year when, with a large majority of athletes, it ranked high in the championship rating. Though compelled to relinquish its prominence in athletics to the incoming class, the Senior class has more than made up for it in other fields of college life; and has always managed to retain at least third place, as well as its reputation for good sportsmanship and clean playing. The Seniors have been especially outstanding this year in dramatics, music, and scholarship. In regard to literature, they published the "Illiwooc 1930" as juniors, and as seniors have put out the bi-weekly paper, the "Greetings." Ever since its freshman year, the Class of '30 has maintained the high standards of ability and loyalty which it leaves as an example to succeeding classes.

1931 SUPERIOR CLASS

junior class history

The Junior class may be said to be the class of transition. They escaped any organized hazing, were the first to employ the new freshman society system, and were also the first freshmen to have classes in MacMurray Hall. They have participated in both the old and the new order of things. They played hockey on the field at Nichol's Park, as freshmen, on the field back of the dormitories, as sophomores, and on the new athletic field, as juniors. In athletics, the Class of '31 has a fair record, for while it secured no championships during the first two years, neither did it place at the foot of the list. During the past year, the Juniors gained the cup for hockey championship, and were second in line for basketball honors. The Class has also made a place for itself in dramatics, scholarship, and other college activities. Several of the important organizations in college life have been headed by members of the Junior class this year. As sophomores, the Class of '31 published a song book and started a song book fund; and as juniors, the editing of the annual is entrusted to them. The class has given its share of entertaining parties, dances, and stunts; and has in general fitted into its place at I. W. C. efficiently and well.

The Class of '32 entered college as the largest class in the history of the school, and immediately set about to augment this distinction into a reputation. They meekly submitted to the yoke of the Sophomores until Thanksgiving evening, when they unexpectedly broke forth and set the precedent for peppy, underclassman rebellion, at which time they gained unofficial recognition. In athletics, the class proved its prominence by carrying off all the major championships, an almost unheard of thing for freshmen. Their parties were unique, and their spirit unsurpassable.

The Class of '32 returned as Sophomores one hundred strong, thus attaining a self-imposed goal. With Marjorie Layman as president, they experienced rush week, always a big event in the lives of Sophs, and successfully participated in the round of athletics, stunts, and dramatics. Although losing the final struggle for the hoekey championship, they made up for this by placing first in basketball. The Sophomores have made a splendid class record in their two years at I. W. C., and their sentiments may be expressed in the following lines, "Proud of our Class, we desire to make it a class of which the college may also be proud."

1933 L. W. C. CLASS

freshman class

The Freshman class may be said to herald in a new era at L. W. C., for along with these new students came the new dormitory and the new dining hall. It is also the first freshman class to play its athletic games and contests on the new athletic field. However, they were not the first freshmen to experience the schooling of the sophomores. The members of the Class of 1933 wore their green ribbons, stood back for upperclassmen, were hailed before Sophomore court for violations, and in addition caused much excitement by burning "Cyril," the hated effigy of the sophs, on the hilarious night before Thanksgiving. The freshmen turned out for hockey in great style, and also organized a basketball squad, which, although it placed last in the class tournament, showed good material and lots of promise. The class gave its first dance on April 5, which proved a notable occasion; and also gave several attractive parties to the other classes during the school year. The freshmen have entered into all college activities with spirit, and have proved themselves capable and dependable along many lines. In short, it took them but a little while to fit themselves into the pattern of college life, and they expect to do great things in the future.

SCHOOL YEAR

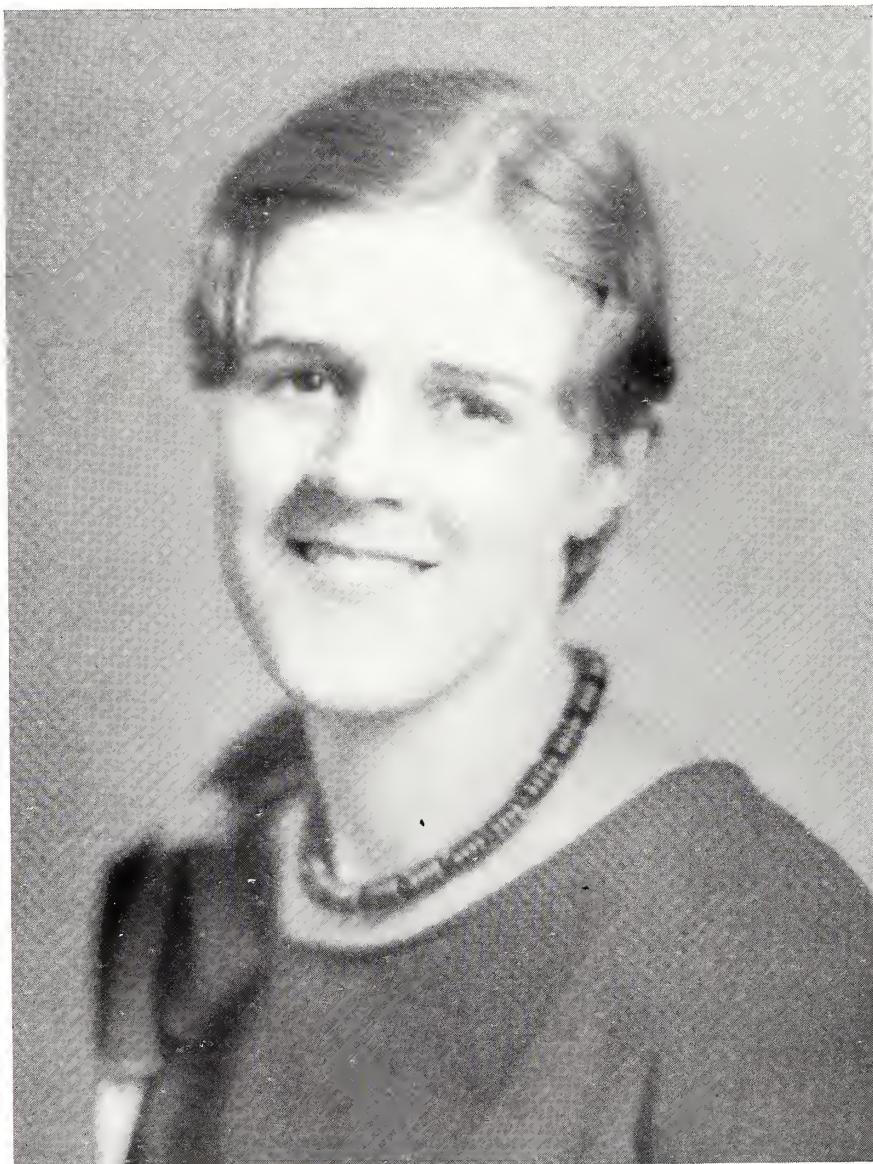

FRIEDA STILLI

In four years the Class of 1930 has had ample time to ascertain the qualities of its members, and in choosing Frieda Stilli as its most representative student, the seniors have paid her a very high compliment. Because of her versatility, scholarship, and ability, Frieda is especially fitted for this recognition. She is a member of Cap and Gown, and has held the office of Editor of the "College Greetings" for the past year. Besides this, Frieda was president of the Dramatic Club last year. She is a member of Lambda Alpha Mu Society. Not a little of Frieda's popularity has been due to her loyalty, good judgment and dependability, upon which has come to rely, not merely her own class, but the entire college.

ELIZABETH HILL

HELEN METZLER

The choice of Helen Metzler as the most all-round girl in the Junior class was a natural one. Helen's prominence in college life dates from her freshman year, when she was elected president of her freshman society, and was captain of the class basketball squad. Her activities have been varied. She was president of the Sophomore class and secretary of the A. A. board. For the past year, she has held the position of House President. Not all her abilities have been confined to student government, for Helen has been a member of all her class teams. She is a member of Belles Lettres Society. Helen's charming and friendly personality, combined with her unusual ability for whatever she undertakes, has gained her a wide circle of friends among the I. W. C. student body.

MARJORIE LAYMAN

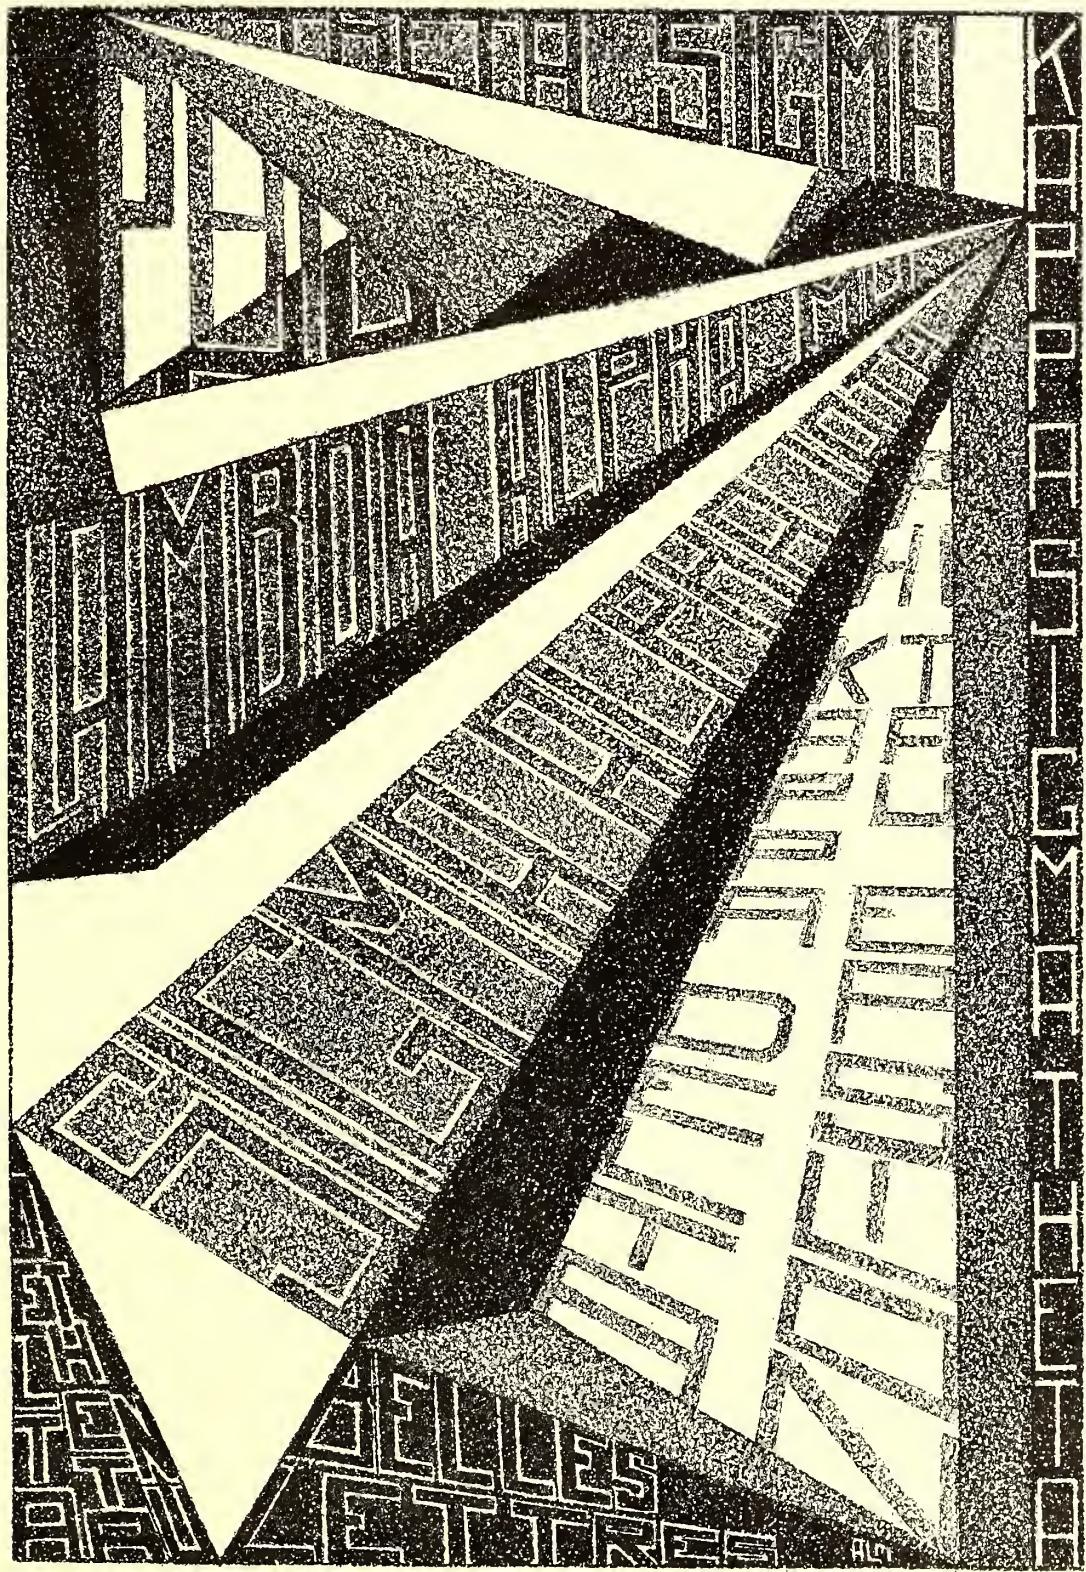

Because of its many all-round girls, it was difficult for the Sophomore class to select any one particular student as the most outstanding. The selection of Marjorie Layman to this position comes as a vote of confidence in her executive ability, as well as in recognition of her personality and efficiency. Marjorie is president of her class this year, a position for which she is excellently fitted, as her interest is divided between student activities and dramatics. She is also president of the Dramatic Club this year, which position she fills with quiet capability. Her never failing serenity of manner and understanding friendliness have secured her the admiration and affection of the whole college. Marjorie is a member of Lambda Alpha Mu Society.

1926 FRESHMAN YEAR

ELEANOR BLITZ

Although the Freshman class usually experiences difficulty in selecting some one who has been sufficiently outstanding, in the short time since its organization, to be termed its most representative member, this was far from being the case this year. Eleanor Blitz was chosen by a large majority as an example of the class's highest type student. Eleanor is interested mainly in student activities and athletics. She was sufficiently distinctive in ability and charm to be selected Freshman class president. She also played on the hockey and basketball squads of her class, where she was noted for her sportsmanship. Eleanor seems to have a bright future before her at I. W. C., for she is already one of the best-known and popular girls in the Freshman class.

Green ribbons do not always mean freshmen. In fact, we would like to be as wise as these eight people are. All we know is that there are eight of them, never any more, never any less. A whisper through the corridors, mysterious packages on the front hall table, hurrying feet at midnight, slam of a distant door, and next morning two or possibly three upperclassmen wearing green ribbons. Ask us no questions, that's all we know. What can it mean?

freshman societies

The purpose of the freshman societies is to promote and foster social life among the freshmen by providing means for them to meet together in groups small enough to have united interests; to enable them to make friendships and to know the members of their own class; and also to stimulate an interest in literature and culture. At first, there was but one freshman society, Alpha Pi Delta, in which each girl automatically became a member as she registered in the college. However, it was felt that this group was entirely too large to be practical and to meet the purpose of the organization. In 1927, therefore, Alpha Pi Delta was reorganized into four present societies, Kappa Sigma Theta, Phi Tau Epsilon, Phi Kappa Delta, and Delta Theta Nu. The first members of the new societies were chosen by lot, but since that time a preferential system is used, whereby, with the aid of a committee of sophomore old members and a committee of freshmen, each girl is placed in the society of her choice. Membership in the freshman societies ceases at the end of the freshman year, as sophomores are eligible for membership in the four upperclass literary societies.

The freshman societies operate on the same basis as the larger societies. They hold meetings once a week, on Tuesday afternoons, at which time literary and musical programs are given. Teas to the old members, parties, and stunts form part of their activities; and through these methods the freshmen soon come to know each other and to fit into the social, as well as the academic side of college life.

The presidents and advisers of the societies this year are: Kappa Sigma Theta, Miss Waring, adviser, Mildred Myer, president; Phi Tau Epsilon, Miss Keller, adviser, Charlotte Foster, president; Phi Kappa Delta, Miss Crawford, adviser, Margaret Bates, president; Delta Theta Nu, Miss Byers, adviser, Frances Hardesty, president.

cap and gown

Cap and Gown, the Senior honorary society, has been the highest honor obtainable at I. W. C. since 1924, when it was organized by the presidents of the four major organizations, Audrey King, Carrie Dyarman, Mary Elizabeth Roark and Helen Bly.

The purpose of the society is not only to recognize and promote excellence in scholarship and interest in extra-curricular activities, but also to augment the more ephemeral qualities of college spirit and loyalty. Only the members of the Senior class who possess these characteristics in a marked degree are ever considered as candidates for the greatest compliment a student can receive while at I. W. C. For this reason the motto of the college, "Knowledge, Faith, Service," was selected as the ideal and keynote of the society.

The choice of the members for the succeeding year is a matter of tradition, and always takes place immediately following the last chapel service of the year. The present members, wearing the insignia of the society, proceed to the front steps of the college, from which symbolic spot they choose their successors from the seniors-to-be, who are assembled at the foot of the steps in a semi-circle. As the elections are kept strictly a secret until this time, and the choice of membership lies with the society itself, neither the faculty nor the college assuming any responsibility for the selection, this is perhaps the most exciting of all college occasions.

Anna Bonansinga, Mertice Pyle and Frieda Stilli were chosen as the members of the Cap and Gown Society for 1930, by the retiring members of 1929, Lucile Sipple, Imogene Ruff and Bertha Swearingen.

Every girl in the Illinois Woman's College is a member of the Students' Association, having become so automatically when she registered in the college. The word "Association" in itself means every girl, and bears with it a deep responsibility which every student helps to promote as she governs her own activities for the upbuilding of the standards of the college. The Students' Association was organized in 1905 under the name of the College Council, and served as an advisory body to student affairs. Due to its efficient operation, the school granted a charter which gave to the Council the name it now bears, and gave to the organization the powers which it now has.

Since that time great progress has been made by the Students' Association. It belongs to the Mid-Western Section of the National Association of Woman's Self Governing Associations. A legislative Council has been established under the supervision of the Students' Association. The "brown book" which contains the rules and regulations of the college, is revised every year. A practicable, workable Honor System in reference to student conduct has been established, and the system has proved a vital part of college life. Each girl is pledged to uphold the rules and traditions of the college, to which she gives her loyal support. Regular meetings of the Association are held on Friday mornings, at which time the plans and problems of the students are discussed.

Because Y. W. C. A. membership this year has been a voluntary matter, the entire program has been different from that of the years preceding. First, a membership drive was necessary, which was most successful, as nearly everyone in college became a signed member. The addition of Sunday afternoon Y. W. meetings made it possible to use the compulsory Wednesday chapel services as a time for gaining interest in the next Sunday's program. This has been carried out through reports, from each interest group, concerning the problem to be discussed at the next Sunday meeting.

The Sunday afternoon worship service has as its sole purpose that of the Y. W. C. A. organization, the realization of a fuller life. During the first semester, the program included a devotional prelude, and interest groups which discussed topics of historical, poetical, musical, and world interest. A different plan was adopted for the second semester. The preliminary service was very brief, the interest groups following immediately. Problems which are found in college, in social, and in community life, and in personal thought experience were discussed.

The Y. W. C. A. does much active service. Collections are taken to help some needy person at Thanksgiving time. A children's party is given at Christmas and again at Easter, at which under-privileged children from Jacksonville homes receive their amount of joy and happiness. The budget exists not only to meet such needs as these, but also to provide scholarships which maintain girls in Madras, Santiago, and Olive Hill schools. The ideal of the organization is not only to be a factor for good for Y. W. C. students, but also to promote the gaining of a world vision, and to meet the needs found.

"The College Greetings" which records the news of the College, is published bi-monthly by the Senior class. In addition, a magazine containing stories, essays, poetry and other literature written by the students, appears twice yearly. "The Greetings" is a member of the Illinois Collegiate Press Association, and delegates are sent each year to its annual conventions. "The Greetings" also sponsors various contests during the year, and makes awards for the best productions.

Although formerly a very small paper, "The Greetings" today is a large publication which follows all the most modern journalistic trends. Under the editorship of Lucy Schulte, in 1928-29, "The Greetings" won first place in the Bi-weekly Newspaper Contest of the I. C. P. A., for which achievement, the staff were presented with a silver loving cup. The present editor, Frieda Stilli, has succeeded in maintaining the high standard of excellence thus set for the paper.

The "Illiwoco" is published each year by the Junior class. The first annual was published in 1915, the present book being the sixteenth volume. The name "Illiwoeo" was selected for the first volume by a popular contest. The prize-winning title was originated by Dorothy Stevens, Grace Heller, Mary Louise Powell, and Feril Hess, and has been retained ever since.

Due to the efforts of each succeeding staff to surpass the work of their predecessors, the "Illiwoco" has grown in size, interest and quality. It has been the wish of the present staff to make this volume express the spirit of the college, as well as to record its growth, which has been phenomenal. We have tried to issue a book in every way worthy of the achievements of the college.

The best voices in the college are included in the Madrigal Club by means of the competitive system. Much interest is always displayed in the try-outs for the club. This year about thirty girls were chosen as those best fitted to work in this organization. Rehearsals are held once each week and the ultimate goal is the annual concert which is given in the spring. The work studied is entirely secular. The Madrigal concert was given in March this year before an enthusiastic audience, and proved to be a great success.

The Club gave its annual program before the assemblies of the Springfield High School, and also gave other programs of interest during the school year.

The College Choir has been entirely reorganized this year and, under the capable direction of Mrs. Marguerite Palmeter-Forrest, has become one of the most popular organizations in the Music Department. It now consists of sixteen girls who have been carefully chosen on a competitive basis. Rehearsals are held once each week, and at this time work is done on services for chapel, special music for Vespers, and secular programs that are scheduled.

The Choir has presented programs in several of the surrounding cities during the year. Its program proved to be one of the interesting musical features at the Pan-American Congress which was held here in May.

Army-Navy Game

hockey

A grand finale for the hockey season! A game in the snow! Just such a game was the Army-Navy game, played on Thanksgiving morning. Willing corps of workers extricated the lines and striking circles and the game went on as scheduled.

Both teams played consistent hockey during the entire game. Until late in the second half, the outcome could not be successfully predicted. The conquest of the Army was threatened in the closing moments of play. The Navy instigated a rush toward the Army goal and as they scored, the game ended. The Army were victorious! The final score was 3-2.

The Junior class, champions for the season, were awarded a new silver loving cup. The freshmen, placing last, received a quart-measure decorated with green ribbon. The cups were presented at the annual hockey dinner. With such an exciting season, and a new, regulation field, the hockey season proved the best in years.

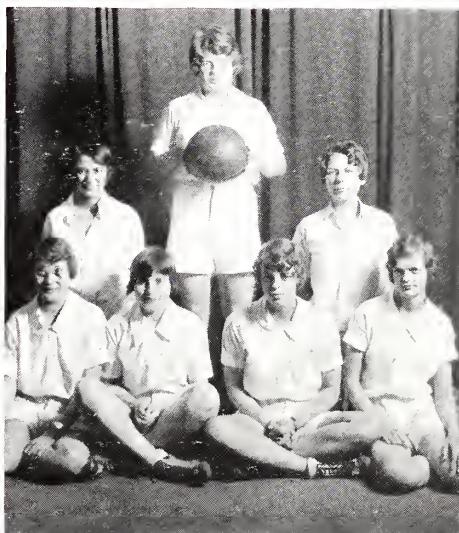

At the close of the season the Varsity was picked from the various class teams.

may day

The season of spring, and the months of February, March, April, and May, figured prominently in May Day this year. The identity of the May Queen, Miss Carolyn Hart, was unknown until the coronation at the end of the festivities. The theme centered around the fact that, in the beginning of each new year, outside interest is always sufficient to delay surmises as to the selection of a queen for the coming May, for at least a month. However, as soon as February arrives with her tantalizing suggestion of spring, everyone becomes interested in this absorbing question.

The attendants (among which were the unknown new Queen and Maid of Honor), dressed in colors of the rainbow, accompanied the last year's Queen as she entered and was seated on the throne. She was abdicating in favor of the coming Queen, and had come to watch the procession of events that led to the selection of her successor, who would be chosen from one of the maids in waiting. The attendants who represented the months of February, March, April, and May ushered in their retinue, who gave many beautiful and artistic dances before the court. The new Queen was then chosen and crowned, and the dance of the May Pole performed before her.

dad's day

Another Dad's Day has passed into history. This year the number of Dads present fairly leaped to an enormous figure. As Dr. McClelland so cleverly put it, "the flower of youth and the dough of old age," are the right ingredients of the "college-bred." This is the day set apart to show "Dad" just how that dough is used.

In the morning the swimming exhibition, which this year took the form of an amateur two-ring circus, held complete interest, and the available space was amply filled for both performances. The clowns did much for the general hilarity of the program, and the clever aerobats, dolphins, seals, and animals were a credit to their trainers. At noon the dads were entertained at dinner in the college dining room, and once again men's voices were heard among the clatter of girls' tongues. Songs were sung to the visitors, and a special, impromptu quartet made up of Dr. McClelland and three dads returned the compliment by singing "Down By the Old Mill Stream" and the old favorite, "Sweet Adeline." Speeches were made by President McClelland and several of the guests.

The seniors transported the dads to "old Ireland" in the afternoon. They presented the one-act play, "Spreading the News." Its comical situations and scenes were a source of pleasure to all.

As the grand finale to the day, the Physical Education Department sponsored the three-act musical comedy, "High Hats." With its element of mysteriously disappearing papers, its chorus girls, its eavorting ensembles, and its corps of talented entertainers, it proved an overwhelming success.

social events

The fall social season of Illinois Woman's College reached its height when the Senior Ball was given on Saturday evening, November 23d. For this occasion the Social Room was delightful in its artistic dignity. Paintings by our own artist, Miss Knopf, decorated the walls. A Chinese moon shed a pale light which added mystery to the "Festival of the Dragon," a special number illustrative of the theme of the dance. Alma Lola Whitney, the first of the Senior class to announce her engagement, was Queen of the Ball.

The Junior Prom, given on April 12th, was the high-light of the spring season. Juanita Jordan was chairman of the affair, which was one of the most successful ever given at the college. The decorations were effected by means of colored balloons covering the entire ceiling. During the special dance, a cache of balloons was released, and they floated down among the dancers, who retained them as favors. The girls received leather desk calendars with the college seal in gold, and each guest received pigskin key-containers which also bore the college seal. The guests were entertained at dinner the next day in the new dining hall.

The committees for the Junior Prom were: Floor, Nina Wynd, Annabel Moore, Frances Alford, Mary Jane Barnett; Food, Helen Gilmore, Frances Tendick, Grace Chapuan; Invitation, Charlotte Van Ormer, Doris Roodhouse, Jewell Simmons; Program, Helen Hart, Olena Cole, Ellen Orr; Decoration, Mary Groves, Irma Hinckman, Helen Dickerson, Louise Huggett.

Other events of the season were the Sophomore Dance, held on March first, and the Freshman Dance, on April fifth. The dances are all held in the spacious and attractive Social Room, and various parties, formal dinner programs, and stunts are also given here, as is the Senior banquet, which took place this year on March 20th. Of special note are the musical and dramatic programs which immediately follow the formal dinners, held once a month. The addition of a radio-victrola this year has greatly added to the charm of the room, making it an ideal place in which to entertain.

debating contests

For several years it has been the custom to hold an interclass debate, for which the Wesley-Mather award was the prize. The debate was between the Junior and the Sophomore classes, and the teams picked from those interested enough to enter the try-outs. However, this year a different plan has been followed, and instead of an interclass debate, an intersociety tournament was substituted. A series of preliminary debates were held within the societies for the purpose of picking the three best debators, who then represented their society. The four upperclass society teams were paired off, and the two winners determined, and the same was done in the four freshman societies. The upperclass societies then debated the freshman teams, and the winners of the contest met for the finals. The tournament was won by the Lambda Alpha Mu Society, the topic for discussion centering on "Chain Stores."

From the two final debating teams the members of the intercollegiate debating team were chosen. An intercollegiate, non-decision debate was held with Northwestern University on April fifth. The question was: "Resolved: That installment buying is detrimental to the best interests of the American people." The members of the intercollegiate debate team were: Frieda Stilli, Melba Reid, and Iona Cole, with Betty Appleton as alternate.

institute on pan american relations

The Institute on Pan American Relations, which took place on May first, second and third, was one of the biggest events in the history of Illinois Woman's College. Mr. Chester D. Pugsley, of Peekskill, New York, an old friend of President McClelland, sponsored the Conference. The affair was distinguished by a number of famous speakers. Edward Alsworth Ross, author of "The Social Revolution in Mexico," traced the differences between Latin America and American society. J. Fred Rippy, of Duke University, and Hubert Clinton Herring discussed the elements of a constructive policy toward Mexico, while Isaac J. Cox, of Northwestern University, made a forecast of our future relations with Latin America. The economic aspects of the question were ably handled by Max Winkler, of New York City, and Harry T. Collings, of the University of Pennsylvania. The University of Illinois was represented by W. L. Robertson, who pointed out the problems involved in our relations with Latin America. The crowning event of the Conference was the banquet given in honor of His Excellency Senor Dr. Don Ricardo Joaquin Alfaro, the Ambassador from Panama. In beauty of color and brilliance of thought the affair was unsurpassable, and will long be remembered at I. W. C.

Army Defeats Navy in Closely Contested Game "Army Mule" and "Navy Dog" Parade

Thanksgiving morning dawned cold and snowy. After consuming cinnamon rolls, I. W. C. students leaned back and began to wonder whether the famous weatherman had been right in his forecast after all. About ten o'clock, a small company armed with brooms charged on to the field and commenced playing hide-and-seek, with the two competitors being the snow and a fairly sensible striking center line before the two teams assembled for the game.

During the first half, the Army buckers could not get organized as well as might be expected. Navy, playing excellent hockey, charged down the field for the first goal in the first few minutes of play. Again and again, they thought Army's game was lost, but one of the best work of Beets' Army's goalkeeper, Navy would probably have scored more than one point.

Just about this time the Army team awoke from its dead sleep, decided it was time to go to the other way and promptly acted upon their decision. They scored two goals while the Army buckers on the side-lines screamed their joy and encouragement. However, Navy was again threatening their goal, so fast that the whistle for the half time.

Both Army and Navy supporters wound out onto the hockey field in a long snake dance, but the feature of the event was the appearance of the Army's mascot, the Army Kentucky Derby, Army player, mounted the animal while the long lines of students wound around and around the field. Another animal, a large brown dog, sported red, white and blue bunting, representing Navy.

As the teams met in the white bivouac, and the players sprang into action, this had seemed to be characterized by a wave of red sweeping down the field. The Army, however, seemed to have some difficulty in making the red sweep, as the ball hardly was passed here or elsewhere. The ball for they were guarded well and closely. Indeed, all options tight-end up. Every player played a fast but careful game. When the Navy captain had the ball within the first third of the Army goal, Army defense rallied and again sent it back to their own forward line. During this half, Army scored one more goal which brought the score to 3-1. That they had won seemed a certainty, until in the last few seconds Cyril took another goal, making the

HEARTLESS FROSH BURN CYRIL WHILE SOPHS DANCE UNMOLESTED

PANDEMOMIUM REIGNS WHEN FROSH ALLOWED FREEDOM ON WEDNESDAY

Cyril, the first evidence of the existence of freshman "pep" suffered a martyr's death upon the pure Wednesday night. November 27, about ten o'clock. It is not known exactly what caused his last moments.

Who is Cyril? That was the foremost question of the day until last Wednesday morning, when Cyril in a very lofty manner, made his debut.

After the first defeat of the sophomore class in the athletic sciences, Cyril was the only sophomore. Numerous surnames were made to his actual identity. As was generally believed, Cyril was none other than the beloved sophomore effigy.

On Wednesday morning, instead of being awakened by the shrill echo of the alarm bell, Main and Barker were brought to consciousness by the shrieks and yells of a noisy band of freshmen.

At breakfast that morning, bright green ribbons were tied here and around there, and caused the youthful faces of the freshmen. Innocent children wearing socks and short dresses skipped blissfully out of the dining room. Upon going out of the dining room window, one was startled by the visage of "le pendu" swinging in the wind being suspended across Old Main Court.

Up until noon on Wednesday, the freshman had kept the campus uninterested in their pre-dinner games. But after lunch, the sophomores evidently decided that they should come out and burn Cyril. Milk combating ensued, but with poor results. From that time on, Cyril was not without guardians. In fact he became such an object of envy, that the freshmen decided that they should come out and burn him.

But at this day, desperate moves were made to capture him; but Cyril was the property of the freshman to the bitter end.

But the sophomores scored an enviable victory. The treasured green ribbon was snatched away from him for three hours during the course of the evening. In fact they would have been there until the end, had not his actual identity.

As was generally believed, Cyril was none other than the beloved sophomore effigy.

Some attempts were made to ransom him, but with little or no success as the sophomores had learned from experience.

At ten o'clock the freshmen made an exit to the back campus and Cyril and the green ribbons were wished "bon voyage" and then went up in flames.

During this triumphant moment for the freshman, the sophomores danced uninterested in the social room.

The annual Senior Ball which was held in the Social Room of Illinois Woman's College on Sunday, November 25, was the first of three Sunday afternoon vesper services which will be held during the College year. Instead of having a service of this kind every month, as the church has been doing previously, the administration has decided to hold only three, one for Thanksgiving, one for Christmas and one for Easter. These services will be of interest to both students and guests.

Hymn—Organ Postlude—Cuklin
Thanksgiving March—Henry Ward Pearson

McClolland introduced Miss Teague who was to recall the past. She did so in a natural, easy manner, setting before her listeners the customs of the Pilgrims, their severity and economy, and the use of their language.

The latter was a surprise to Dr. McClolland, as the present sophomore class exemplified skillfully in Miss Teague's class, the present sophomores.

Another interval of music occurred when Heine Tuschoff and Mertie Pyle gave a solo. Still later for the students in her "Realization" taking the present things for which I. W. C. students should be thankful. Especially apt was her closing comparison.

"We have two chrysanthemums," said Miss Still, "one tall and one short. We must compare them to our own growth and our own little ones." Then came the latter, Mrs. McClolland introduced Rev. J. A. Chapman, minister of Vermont Street Church in Quincy, Illinois, and the father of Grace Chapman, now a student here. Dr. McClolland gave a brief description of his work and the student body the powers and sacrifices behind the blessings we receive.

This ended a perfect Thanksgiving dinner and program. With the strains of the college hymn echoing through the dining hall, another Thanksgiving dinner passed into memory.

Y. W. C. A. PRESENTS PLAY
"The Nativity" will be presented under the auspices of the Y. W. C. A. Wednesday night, December 18, in the Auditorium.

This play is beautiful in its simplicity and combining tableaux and speaking roles very effectively.

The main characters are Joseph—Lester Johnson, Joseph—John Tuschoff, Zackariah—Louie McLean, Gabriel—Janet McClolland, Three Wise Men—Rohinda Oles, Joceyline Waters, and Helen Proctor.

The play is open to the public and will be presented with no admission charge.

"college greetings" literary contest

The "Greetings," in the interests of good literature, and also to encourage students to develop literary talent, holds a contest each year, which covers the fields of short stories, essays, both formal and informal, poetry, and one-act plays. Awards are made for the best and second best manuscripts submitted in each division. There is no limit on the number or type of work submitted, so that each student may submit as many and as varied an assortment of manuscripts as she chooses, and may win both prizes in any division. The prize-winners are first announced at the last Chapel, and the awards made at that time. As the contestants themselves do not know who are winners until that time, the occasion proves of intense interest to the entire student body. Last year, in addition to the usual awards, a prize was offered for the composition of a suitable new college song, for the Sophomore Song Book then being published.

The winners of awards for 1929 were: Short story, first place, Mary Frances Scott; second place, Iona Cole; honorable mention, Mary Frances Scott and Dorothy Booth; poetry, first place, "Spring," by Irma Hinchman; second place, "Lampshades," by Dorothy Booth; essay, first place, Lela Ferriera; second place, Mary Eleanor Musk; honorable mention, Helen Beebe; one-act play, first place, Mary Eleanor Musk, second place, Beatrice Vasconcellos; honorable mention, Barbara Lee Snider; song contest, Kathryn Keys.

lamp shades

By DOROTHY BOOTH

Lamp shades are people—
Did you know that?
A dainty, crinkled, flower-sprigged lamp shade
Is a fragle china-sweet lady
Dressed in an old fashioned gown
All crinkly ruffles.

Orange parchment shades—
Black ships silhouetted on them—
Are tall bronze skinned lads
With salt-spray on their lips
And sea-love in their eyes.

Bed lamps—
Pale pinks, blues, greens, lavendars—
Lacy, fragile—
Are babies after baths
Sweet—rosy—blue-eyed.

Plain, round, undecorated
Dark blue lamp shades—
Are reliable, trusty dads—
Dads who aren't much to look at
But are constant, strong—

Tiny lamps
Wearing helmets for shades
Are soldiers
Their helmets half awry.

Stiff, angular, futuristic lamp shades
Flaunting every colour—
Crazy designs in scarlet, green, gold,
Unrestrained, untrammeled, unconfin'd—
Are gay college girls
Laughing—dancing
Through ancient corridors.

“swell betters”

There is only one topic discussed at a “Swell Better” meeting. Before November 9th, the members did extensive research work in preparation for reports on the subject “What to do when meeting one’s husband for the first time.” On that date a happy couple, the “Swell Bettters” and the lesser half, the “Big Pies” of a neighboring college, had a get-together so that some of the husbands and wives could not say they had never met. It was a singular fact that at this jolly little gathering the most prominent wife literally clung to the chaperone’s skirts for fear some Big Pie-eye would want to trip the light fantastic with her. At the conclusion of the evening, the hen-pecked husbands presented their faithful wives with a nice little gold (gilt nickel plate?) loving cup, and made their escape. Since this time, the discussions have centered on such subjects as “How can I regain my husband’s affections?” and “My husband deserted me after our fiftieth anniversary.” Touching numbers are rendered by the Swell Better quartet, composed of sisters Smithy, Shame, Weed, and Flivver. The favorite selections given are “Lover, Come Back To Me,” and “Where, Oh, Where, Has My Little Dog Gone?”

rambda bambda boo

The meeting opened at five o’clock (after being scheduled for four-fifteen) with setting up exercises, the purpose being to keep alive in the younger generation the old traditions. After this, all retired to the private sanctuary at the back of the room. A debate was held on the question: “Does It Pay To Advertise?” The affirmative was upheld by sisters Fuell, Standman, and Pepperaman, while the negative was presented with much fervor by sisters Loudli, McAmber, and Anthracite. A short talk was given by a well-known senior member on: “How I Attained My Popularity.” A lively discussion broke out over a proposal to remove the pendulum of the defuncted grandfather’s clock, and the president only succeeded in calling the meeting to order by allowing all members to dust the pianoforte.

President Jumper was addressing the special meeting. (The "I Knews" never hold ordinary sessions. All their get-togethers are "special meetings.")

"Sisters, we can't have all the others runing aronnd, and still sit idle. We'll have to clean up the place. Now, Sister Badevery, you take the athletic field, and mind, do your best! Sister Salt, I delegate you to those prominent paintings in the front hall. Don't let them out of your sight a second. Sister Larker, you take the front steps. Take them anywhere. Take 'em to the Senior House, to the show, to town, take 'em anywhere. Only take 'em! The rest of you take what you can find. Now, we're not counting on walking away with everything, but "all's fair in love and fall."

At the close of this stirring speech, the "I Knews" burst from the room and swept through the dormitories, collecting everything they could in the rush. Another special session was then called, and the theme song, "You Were Meant For Me," was sung by all, everyone ending by shouting the words "I Knew," a custom which has given the society its name.

wayta digma

"Meeting come to order!" roared the President for the fifth time. "Aw, now, calm down, Aris," shouted Mural, "can't you see I've got to practice hurdling over this chair or I won't be any good in field day?" Everyone in the room was talking except timid little Bettina Applejack. She was sitting in a corner, per usual, embroidering a handkerchief. For lack of lung power, Aris sat down and started to toss paper balls into a near-by tea pot. Evidently an idea came to her, for the next moment she was jumping all over the table shouting "Hallelujah!" At first, this didn't seem to make any difference to the Wayta Digma, as they had become very much used to it, but as her prancing and yelling continued, they became quieted. Finally, she stood still and said, "Oh, women! I have the most novel idea! Let's have a tea and invite the dear faculty——!" There was much applanse and shouts of joy, for they had never had a tea before. The remainder of the meeting was turned over to the cheer-leader, who led a rousing yell until the dinner bell rang.
